LONDON, JANUARY, 15, 1870.

THE RUMOURS respecting the proposed reconstruction of the Equity Bench have lately assumed a more definite form, though not one which can be considered less objectionable than that to which we formerly objected. It is now stated that arrangements have been definitely made for the transfer of Lord Romilly to the Court of Appeal, and for providing for the discharge of his present functions without appointing any successor to his present office. Our informants differ inter se as to how this is to be effected, and under these circumstances we do not think it expedient to comment on any of the plans suggested. They all involve the extinction of one of the present courts of first instance, and though, from certain very exceptional causes, it is made to appear that this can be done without detriment to the public interests, we are none the more satisfied that this is so. The last term has been marked by a peculiar dearth of litigation, of which there is no reason for anticipating any permanence, and the special circumstances which have retarded the progress of business at the Rolls during the present week are such as can, in the nature of things, but seldom occur. We are satisfied that to reduce the number of equity judges of first instance to three would be but a seeming economy, to be dearly paid for by an inevitable amount of business, with all its consequent delay and expense. But with the example of Somerset House and Portsmouth before us, we are not justified in supposing it less likely on that account.

Another rumour we have heard in connection with this question, at which, under ordinary circumstances, we should rejoice—viz., that it is proposed to reconstitute the Court of Appeal so as to make it consist of three permanent judges (who are always, or ordinarily, to sit together) and to relieve the Lord Chancellor of most of his present judicial duties. This is precisely what we long since advocated, nor do we see any drawback except the possibility that any piecemeal improvement may at this juncture interfere to retard the completion of the reforms advocated by the Judicature Commission. This would be a serious evil; indeed, the hope of the speedy advent of these reforms is almost the only consideration which renders endurable the present crippled condition of the bench, both at common law and in equity.

SEVERAL JUDICIAL DECISIONS have already been given, affecting the practice to be adopted in the new Court of Bankruptcy. The most important of these we report in another column. It will be observed that the chief judge has declined to lay down any general rule as to whether disputed adjudications are to be heard in court or in chambers, intimating at the same time an opinion, in which we think most people will concur, that where there is real litigation it had better proceed in the face of the public and in open daylight.

A very important rule of practice has been laid down as to debtors' summonses. For the future, when a debtor served with a summons denies the debt, and wishes to apply for the dismissal of the summons, the registrar, in fixing the time for hearing the application under Rule 23, is to fix it so as to give three clear days' notice to the parties, and if any extension of time for the hearing is needed, it must be asked for on proper grounds.

Section 13 of the Act empowers the Court to appoint a receiver at any time after petition presented. The chief judge has decided that this section only intends the case in which adjudication has not yet been made. This view commends itself to common sense, since the trustee may after adjudication do all the acts of a receiver, and until adjudication the registrar may do what the trustee could do.

We shall make a point of promptly reporting all decisions material towards the settlement of the new practice, with such comment as may seem advisable.

ON WEDNESDAY the Lord Chancellor and Lord Justice Giffard delivered their reserved judgment in the case of the Family Endowment Assurance Company, affirming the decision of Vice-Chancellor James (18 W. R. 112); firstly, that that society is within the purview of the winding-up provisions of the Companies' Act, 1862, and, secondly, that General Pott, the annuitant who since the "amalgamation" with the Albert Society had been paid by the latter, was still a creditor of the Family Endowment. Upon the first point, we think that no reasonable doubt existed. The members had agreed to dissolve the society in 1861, and since then it had ceased to carry on business, and had no staff or place of business; but Lord Hatherley observed, that as long as anything remained to be done, or, we would say, capable of being done, for the adjustment of its affairs, either as regards members inter se or creditors, the society was within the purview of the 8th part of the Act. Lord Justice Giffard disposed very neatly of the argument that the company to be within the purview of the Act must be a company still carrying on business, by citing the analogy of the tests given in sections 79, 80. The second question is the one of real importance. The Court of Appeal, treating the question as one of fact, whether or no the annuitant had consented to accept the liability of the second society in place of that of the first, answered that question, as the Vice-Chancellor had done, in the negative. Both the Vice-Chancellor and the Court of Appeal observe that such a case differs widely from the case of the creditor of a firm or partnership, as to the strength of evidence necessary to prove an accepted substitution. The case of an annuitant receiving payments differs, as we have before observed, from that of a policyholder making them, because receiving cannot be evidence of recognition to the same extent that paying may be; but we think we can glean from the judgments now delivered that if General Pott had been paying premiums on a policy instead of receiving instalments of an annuity, the decision would have been just the same. Lord Hatherley says:—

"Something more is required, as it seems to me, to bring home to the annuitant a knowledge that by such payment, which might well be made out of the transferred assets, the new company intends to enter into a new contract with him for payment of his annuity out of a totally different fund.

"I have assumed that all the proceedings between the society and the company were warranted by their respective deeds, and there is no necessity for me to raise any doubt upon that subject, for my decision is independent of that question; but one cannot help observing the great difference that exists between an ordinary succession in a partnership and a transaction of this nature. In order to prove the acquiescence of a creditor to the change of his debtor he must be assumed to have satisfied himself that the substitution could legitimately be made—an assumption in the highest degree improbable.

"On the other hand, nothing could be more easy than for the new company, if it so intended, to obtain a clear recognition of their new contract by the General, or the equally clear rejection of it."

If "policyholder," be substituted for "annuitant," and if for "payments made out of the transferred assets," we substitute "payments carried to a separate account of the transferred assets," these paragraphs still govern the case. We are at the pains to point out this, because we have ourselves previously expressed the opinion that in general, policyholders who have been paying to the transferee company should be taken as having accepted its liability; it is therefore right that, writing as we do for the guidance of our readers, we should point out that that is not the view of the Court.

A SOMEWHAT UNUSUAL application was made to the Court of Common Pleas in the case of Bradlaugh v. De Rin, on the first day of term. The case was determined in that court (16 W. R. C. P. 1128) in 1868. The plaintiff appealed to the Exchequer Chamber, before whom a question arose as to a fact which had not been proved, and a referee was appointed to ascertain the fact.

The plaintiff tendered himself as a witness before the referee, but was objected to on the ground of his disbelief in a future state of rewards and punishments, and the referee refused to receive his evidence. The plaintiff then applied to the Court of Common Pleas for an order to compel the referee to receive the plaintiff's oath, or a declaration in lieu thereof. The court refused to act in the matter, on the ground that they had no jurisdiction, as they had not directed the inquiry.

It would seem that if any court has jurisdiction to make the order asked for, it must be the Court of Exchequer Chamber by whom the reference was ordered. As, however, the Evidence Further Amendment Act, 1869 (32 & 33 Vict. c. 68, s. 4), is now in force, by which persons objected to as incompetent to take an oath may make a declaration instead, the plaintiff ought to have no difficulty in giving his evidence. The 4th section of the Act exactly meets a case like the present, and it would appear that the plaintiff could obtain the benefit of its provisions without any application to the Court for that purpose.

THE MASTER OF THE ROLLS in a recent case of Re The Northern Assam Tea Company (18 W. R. 126), followed a rule laid down by Vice-Chancellor Malins, that, when a winding-up order is made, the nominee of the person who has the carriage of the order should be appointed official liquidator if there appear to be no material difference between the persons proposed for the office. On Thursday Sir Roundell Palmer applied to have an appeal from this decision heard by the Full Court of Appeal, on the ground that the question involved is one of principle, and that it will govern a number of other cases. The Lord Chancellor granted the application, and fixed next Tuesday for the hearing of the appeal.

THERE IS A WELL-KNOWN STORY of a jury who returned a verdict of "guilty, with some doubt as to the identity of the prisoner," after convicting, and of another who recommended the prisoner to mercy, "because they didn't think he was the man who did it." These are usually considered too good jokes to have actually occurred. If, however, the report in the Times of Wednesday last is correct, the first of the above verdicts has been equalled by one given by a jury at the Central Criminal Court on Tuesday. One George Woolgar, a policeman, was indicted for highway robbery in taking by force some money from a woman in the street. The jury, after three hours' deliberation, found a verdict of guilty, "with a strong recommendation to mercy on the ground of discrepancies in a portion of the evidence." Such a verdict requires no comment, but it is still more remarkable that, according to the report, the Recorder took that recommendation into his consideration in deciding on the sentence which ought to be passed.

That a jury should sometimes be illogical is not, perhaps, surprising, but a judge should know better. We must hope that there has been some inaccuracy in the report.

ON WEDNESDAY AN APPLICATION was made to the Lord Chancellor that an appeal from the decision of the Master of the Rolls in Re The Heyford Iron Works Company (18 W. R. 226), might be heard by the Full Court of Appeal. Our readers will remember that the question in the case relates to the effect of subscription of the memorandum of association of a company in the ordinary way, and a subsequent allotment of fully paid-up shares to the subscriber without his making any actual payment in money. The Master of the Rolls refused to follow the decision of the Lord Justice Giffard in Pell's case (18 W. R. 31), and expressed a wish that, if there were an appeal from his decision, it might be heard by the Lord Chancellor and the Lord Justice. The Lord Chancellor acceded to the application, and Tuesday next has since been appointed for the hearing of the appeal by the Full Court.

OUR COLUMNS have recently contained a considerable amount of correspondence relating to the mutual relations of the two branches of the legal profession, arising in the first instance, from our having printed two papers on the subject recently read before the Metropolitan and Provincial Law Society. About a year and a half ago (12 S. J. 718), we recapitulated the reasons which induced us to dissent from those who desire "amalgamation"; and as the topic appears to have come to the surface again, we propose to trouble our readers with a few more observations next week.

IT IS ANTICIPATED that Mr. Justice Willes will retire from the bench during the present year. He was appointed in 1855, and will, therefore, shortly become entitled to his retiring pension.

THE BANKRUPTCY RULES.

No. II.

We pointed out in our last number the bearing of the more important of the new rules upon proceedings in bankruptcy down to adjudication. But since that time one of the points which we touched upon, and one of very great importance, has come before the Chief Judge in Bankruptcy, Mr. Bacon. We have more than once explained to our readers that the process of adjudication contemplated by the new Act is evidently quite unlike that which formerly prevailed. The old adjudication was a private affair, which passed ordinarily quite sub silentio; the real contest, if any, arising at a later stage. Under the new system adjudication is to be of the nature of a judicial decision based upon evidence, and delivered after hearing both parties if they desire to be heard. When this change was to be made, it at once became evident, as we showed many months ago, that a question must arise as to where disputed adjudications should be heard, in open court, or in the privacy of chambers. The rules have left the matter undecided, and the question is reported to have been brought before the Chief Judge on the very first day of his sitting in the new court. If he be correctly reported, he prudently abstained from laying down any general rule on the subject, but suggested that in ordinary cases the hearing should be in private; though if the petitioning creditor's debt were disputed, or any other question suitable for a public trial were raised, a contrary practice might be adopted. And we may observe that, as by rule 36 a debtor who resists a petition in bankruptcy must give a formal notice, specifying which of the allegations of the petition he disputes, the parties must always be distinctly at issue before the time appointed for hearing, and the judge will be able therefore to see what the question to be determined is, and to judge what is the fittest mode of trial.

The rules governing the proof of debts seem to us to be in the main simple enough, and likely to work well; but they fall a little hardly, we think, upon secured creditors. A secured creditor, under the Act—and it is no more than common sense and common justice require—must either give up his security, or else hold his security and prove only for the balance due to him over and above the value of the security. By rule 78 such a creditor may do what he was empowered to do under the old law, that is, have his security realised by direction of the court, and then prove for the balance, if any. But it is plain that there may often be cases in which it would be very undesirable to realise a security at the moment of bankruptcy, especially as bankruptcies are very apt to occur in greatest numbers at the very time when all securities are most depreciated. In such a case the rights and duties of the creditor are determined by rules 99, 100, and 101. By them he is required, before he can prove or in any way act as a creditor, to assess the value of his security. To prevent his under-estimating its value, it is provided that the trustee may if he chooses, take the security at its assessed value. And this is probably fair enough, for there might be a substantial danger of secured creditors fraudulently undervaluing their securities in order to enhance the amount for which they may prove against the estate. And of course, in any case, if the security produces more than the estimate, the trustee is to have the surplus. On the other hand, if the estimate turn out to have been above the mark, and the security produces less than was calculated, the creditor is not to be allowed to increase the amount of his proof accordingly. This seems to us a little hard. An over estimate of a security is not likely to be made, except by an honest mistake. And it is scarcely reasonable that the holder of a security should be inevitably subjected to a penalty if he makes, however honestly, the smallest mistake upon either side in valuing his security.

Some of the rules introduced under the head of Trustee are of considerable importance; one or two of them indeed, if they are to operate as seems to be intended, may very likely, we think, be held to be ultra vires. Section 106 says that where no security is specified by the creditors under section 14 to be given by the trustee, "he shall be personally responsible in the performance of the duties of his office to the extent of the value of the property of the bankrupt." Now of course, with or without rule, the trustee would be answerable to the extent of this trust-property, and possibly even beyond it, as any other trustee is. But if it is intended to create any new and exceptional liability, surely it would need an Act of Parliament to do so. Rule 110 declares that "no person shall be entitled as against the trustee to withhold possession of the books of account of the bankrupt, or to claim any lien thereon." Is it to be supposed that this rule can take his lien from a bookbinder, who has had possession of the books to bind them, or an accountant to post them up? And if an action of trover were brought by the trustee against such a person, would any court in the kingdom give effect to this rule? The fact is, that the rule is an attempt to re-enact section 121 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1861, omitted in the new Act. The provision is no doubt a wise one, and its omission in the New Act was no doubt an oversight; but the attempt to make such an enactment by rule seems to us far in excess of the powers given to the framers of the rules.

Few parts of the rules are more important, or require more careful consideration from professional men, than those which relate to the discharge of the bankrupt. Everyone who is familiar with the Act knows that the course of events contemplated as the ordinary one is, that the estate should be realised, then the bankruptcy closed, and thereupon the bankrupt discharged. But let us see how it works out. By section 47, "When the whole property has been realised, or so much thereof as can in the joint opinion of the trustee and the committee of inspection be realised, without needlessly protracting the bankruptcy, the trustee shall make a report accordingly to the Court, and the Court, if satisfied, &c., shall make an order that the bankruptcy has closed." A copy of this order may be gazetted. By section 48, "When a bankruptcy is closed the bankrupt may apply to the Court for an order of discharge," which he is, under ordinary circumstances, to have if his estate has realised ten shillings in the pound. The rules (183 to 142) require that twenty-one days' notice of the application shall be published in the Gazette, and given to the trustee; and that no order of discharge shall be made till after the public examination of the bankrupt. Now, the result of all this is that the close of the bankruptcy is a matter simply between the trustee, the inspectors, and the bankrupt, and the discharge a matter between the trustee and the bankrupt, for the interference of the Court cannot, in the absence of opposition, be anything more than formal. There is no provision that the creditors shall have any real notice of either step, and even the inspectors, unless they read the Gazette regularly, may never hear of the application for discharge. The matter, however, is a very serious one. No doubt after the close of the bankruptcy and discharge of the bankrupt, such part of the estate as has not before been realised will pass to the registrar, who is to realise it if he can. But he will have lost all the special powers which make the realisation of a bankrupt's estate possible, and will know nothing about the property. So that we suppose everybody who knows anything of such matters will agree that in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred the close of the bankruptcy and discharge of the bankrupt will amount in effect to an abandonment of any outstanding assets. Now it seems to us that where certain assets have been realised, and there are other assets still outstanding, the general body of creditors ought to have a voice in deciding whether those assets should be practically abandoned by closing the bankruptcy, or the bankruptcy should be kept open in order to recover them. We do not complain of the rules in this matter. They are in accordance with the spirit of the Act, and creditors have the remedy in their own hands. Of course, only experience can positively decide what ought to be done. But we are strongly inclined to think that in every bankruptcy one of the instructions given to the trustee on his appointment, or subsequently, under sections 14 and 20 of the Act, should be, not to close the bankruptcy without the consent of a meeting of creditors.

The enforcement of debts against the after-acquired property of an undischarged bankrupt is another subject the rules as to which will naturally be looked to with much interest. Section 54 of the Act says that if a debtor fails to obtain his discharge, either at the close of the bankruptcy or within three years thereafter, then, at the expiration of the three years, "any balance remaining unpaid of any debt proved in such bankruptcy (but without interest in the meantime) shall be deemed a subsisting debt in the nature of a judgment-debt, and subject to the rights of any persons who have become creditors of the debtor since the close of his bankruptcy, may be enforced against any property of the debtor with the sanction of the Court, &c., but to the extent only and at the time and in manner directed by such court, and after giving such notice and doing such acts as may be prescribed" (i.e. by rule). The words which we have printed in italics were an afterthought, being inserted during the progress of the bill through Parliament, and looking at them in connection with the other words of the clause, and with the rest of the Act, the rules upon this subject were looked forward to with great interest. It was supposed, on the one hand, that something would appear showing how "the rights of persons who have become creditors since the bankruptcy" were to be secured, whether some mode was to be provided for securing payment of all such creditors in full, before allowing anything to the old creditors. It was further supposed that we should be told whether, as among the old creditors, the creditor who chanced to apply first, was to have it all his own way, or the ordinary rule of equality was to prevail; and if so, how it was to be secured. People expected to hear, in fact, whether every such application was necessarily to give rise in substance to a new bankruptcy, or whether something short of this, and what, was to occur. But those who expected any such information will be disappointed. The rules (183 to 185) simply provide that where any creditor makes an application for enforcement of the balance of his debt against the property of an undischarged bankrupt, unless the application be dismissed at once, the hearing shall be adjourned, and seven days' notice of the adjourned hearing shall be published in the Gazette and in one local paper. And at the adjourned hearing "the Court may hear all persons claiming to be creditors of the debtor before or since the close of the bankruptcy, and make such order in the matter as it thinks fit, or adjourn the hearing for further evidence." This is, as far as we know, without a parallel in the history of legislation. It is, we believe, the first time that a new jurisdiction has been created, without giving even a hint of the principles, either of law or of policy, which are to be acted upon by those upon whom it is conferred. And the persons upon whom this unheard-of responsibility is thrown are the registrars of county courts!

With regard to appeals, it is provided that any appeal must be entered within twenty-one days of the order appealed from.

It should be observed that affidavits in bankruptcy may be sworn either before any officer of a court of bankruptcy authorised to administer oaths, or before any person authorised to administer oaths in any of the superior courts; and an affidavit proving a debt may also be sworn before the trustee in the bankruptcy. It is a little curious to notice the provisions of Rule 152 as to the form of an affidavit. Affidavits have to be used in the county court chiefly in equity, in admiralty matters, and henceforth in bankruptcy. In equity the affidavit must state the deponent's "age, occupation, quality and place of residence;" in admiralty matters his "age, name, address and description;" in bankruptcy his "name, address and description."

We must postpone till next week the consideration of the rules which relate to the very important subjects of liquidation by arrangement and composition.

COURT OF CHANCERY.

MASTER OF THE ROLLS.

Jan. 14.—Lord ROMILLY sat at half-past ten, to deliver judgment in the Berkhamstead copyholders' case of Smith v. Earl Brownlow, and having done so, rose for the day, there being no other business before the court. On Monday the court will pronounce judgment in the causes of Prettyman v. Swinerton, and Swinerton v. Prettyman; and on Tuesday in Ingle v. Goodwin. His Lordship has applied to the Lord Chancellor for a transfer of causes from the list of one of the Vice-Chancellors; so that in a day or two the court will doubtless be sitting as usual.

QUEEN'S BENCH.

In Re An Attorney.

Jan. 13.—Murray applied on behalf of the Incorporated Law Society for a rule nisi, calling upon an attorney of this court to answer the matters of an affidavit with a view to ulterior proceedings. The attorney was admitted in 1861, and continued to practice until 1865. In 1863 he applied to be re-admitted, and in the necessary affidavit he swore that he had not practised in the interval as an attorney, either in his own name or that of any other attorney; but it had since come to the knowledge of the Society that he had done so, and they considered it their duty to bring the matter before the court.

Rule granted.

BANKRUPTCY COURTS.

LINCOLN'S INN-FIELDS.

(Before the CHIEF JUDGE.)

Jan. 11.—The Chief Judge took his seat this day at the new court which has been fitted up for the purpose. The court is more commodious than either of the rooms heretofore used in Basinghall-street, though somewhat defective in regard to the accommodation of solicitors, and it is stated that the bar-room is wholly inadequate in size.

Re Morris Gregory.

Registration of a deed under section 192 of Act of 1861—Extension of time.

Reed applied for the extension of the time allowed for the registration of a deed of composition executed by this debtor. The affidavits showed that the deed, which bore date the 9th December, was tendered for registration under the 192nd section of the Bankruptcy Act, 1861, but the registrar, on the ground that no order had been granted extending the time beyond the 31st ult., declined to receive it. The matter was mentioned yesterday to Mr. Registrar Hazlitt, who referred it to the chief judge. It was stated that the twenty-eight days allowed by statute for registration having expired, the present application became necessary.

The Court now granted two days further time for registration.

The practice on the hearing of disputed adjudications.

Bagley desired to ask his Lordship what would be the future practice in regard to the hearing of disputed adjudications—would they be heard in private as had been the practice heretofore, or in public?

The CHIEF JUDGE said he knew of no reason why the present practice should be departed from.

Bagley mentioned the subject because the new Act provided that in certain cases an issue should be joined for trial by jury.

The CHIEF JUDGE.—That must be done in Court.

Bagley apprehended that there was no reason why the old practice should not prevail, because the credit of a person might be materially injured by the discussion in public of the question of whether he was a fit subject for bankruptcy or not.

The CHIEF JUDGE.—We are dealing with a great novelty, the practice is new to us all. As far as I can see at present the adjudication should take place in chambers as has been done hitherto, but there may be cases where of necessity an issue must be tried, which can only be done in Court.

Mr. Lawrance said the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, seemed to establish a new practice somewhat analogous to that adopted in the Court of Chancery. The petition was presented and heard, and the petitioning creditor must make out his case at the hearing, but it did not seem that the debtor would be prejudiced by the discussion of the subject in open court if no bankruptcy existed.

Bagley.—I cannot agree with Mr. Lawrance on that subject.

The CHIEF JUDGE said his opinion was if there was real litigation it would be better that it proceed in the face of the public, for he thought that the more of daylight was thrown on these cases the better. He did not want to lay down any new rule which might embarrass suitors hereafter; it would be better to deal with each case individually as it arose.

Bagley said that probably certain days would be set apart on which the Court would sit in chambers.

The CHIEF JUDGE said that no doubt that would be so.

Re a Debtor's Summons.

Practice—Rule B—Time—Application to dismiss debtor summons.

Jan. 12.—Bagley, for the summoning creditor, applied to the Court under the following circumstances. On the 3rd inst. a debtor summons was issued under the provisions of the new Act, and on the same day was personally served on the debtor. On the 10th the debtor filed an affidavit denying the existence of any debt, and at his instance the 24th was appointed for the hearing. The learned counsel now asked that the time should be shortened, inasmuch as it would be perfectly monstrous that a debtor, a week after he had received the summons, should obtain fourteen days further time by merely making an affidavit in contradiction to that of the creditor. In these matters it was important that as little time as possible should be lost in determining the question of the debt, because, until that had been done, no petition for adjudication could be served on the debtor, who would still have a week further to dispute it. Reference was made to rules 17—24 under the Bankruptcy Act, 1869.

The CHIEF JUDGE, after consultation with Mr. Murray, the registrar attending him, referred to the 23rd rule, and said that in the first instance the registrar ought to give three clear days' notice to the debtor and creditor of the hearing of the application to dismiss the summons, subject to the state of the business before the Court, and any application for extension of the time might afterwards be entertained upon proper grounds. For the future this would be the practice.

Re Crowhurst.

Bankruptcy Act, 1869, s. 13.

Jan. 13.—This was the first case of an adjudication under the new law.

Mr. Thomas Phelps, on behalf of the petitioning creditor, applied for the appointment of a receiver under section 13 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869. It appeared that the bankrupt had carried on the business of a dealer in fancy goods, and it was desirable that a receiver should be appointed to carry on the business, and take possession of the property.

The CHIEF JUDGE was of opinion that the section applied to those cases only where a petition had been presented and adjudication had not yet been obtained. Until the appointment of a trustee the registrar could act as trustee, and could take possession of the estate and deal with it in the same way as a receiver would do. This being so, if a receiver was appointed the authorities might clash. His Lordship did not think it necessary therefore to appoint a receiver.

Re Wyatt.

Prosecution under s. 221 of Act of 1861.

This was an application on behalf of assignees for leave to prefer an indictment against the bankrupt, jointly with two other persons, for offences under the Bankruptcy Act, 1861. The matter had been brought under the notice of the registrar, and by him referred to the chief judge.

Read supported the application, which was made ex parte, and referred to Ex parte Stallard re Howard, 16 W. R. 469.

The evidence having been referred to at some length,

His LORDSHIP granted an order for leave to prosecute the bankrupt for offences under the 221st section, but said that no order was necessary to embrace in the indictment the two persons alleged to be conspirators with him. The assignees might, if so advised, include these two persons, and then Ex parte Topping re Levy, 13 W. R. 445, would be an authority to the chief registrar to justify the payment of the costs of including them in the indictment.

New Orders.

The CHIEF JUDGE has delegated to Mr. William Hazlitt, Mr. H. P. Roche, Mr. J. R. Brougham, Mr. W. P. Murray, Mr. P. H. Pepys, and the Hon. W. C. Spring-Rice, the following powers:—

"With respect to the business of the old Court of Bankruptcy transferred to the new Court of Bankruptcy, under and by virtue of the said order of the Lord Chancellor, the said registrars shall proceed with the prosecution and winding-up of all business pending in the old Court of Bankruptcy on the 31st day of December, 1869, and for the purpose of prosecuting and winding-up such business shall, under and by virtue of this delegation, possess and exercise all the power and authority vested in the Chief Judge, except the power to make an order to commit a person for contempt.

"The said several registrars shall proceed with the prosecution and winding-up of the business so pending in the courts to which they were respectively attached on the 31st day of December, 1869."

The Chief Judge has also appointed Mr. Charles Hansard Keene a registrar of the London Bankruptcy Court, to preside over the office for registration of arrangement proceedings.

For the present the Chief Judge will hold his sittings in Portugal-street on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays in each week, at half-past ten o'clock.

Mr. Edward Austin has been appointed clerk to the registrars and usher of the Courts in Basinghall-street, vice his brother, Mr. John Austin, appointed clerk to the Chief Judge.

COUNTY COURTS.

A report forwarded to us of a decision in the Birmingham County Court was not sufficiently complete for insertion.

Mr. James Fitzjames Stephen, Q.C., the recently appointed Law Member of the Supreme Council of India, took the oath and his seat at the Council Board on the 14th of December last.

APPOINTMENTS.

MR. JOHN FRANCIS COLLIER, barrister-at-law, of the western circuit, has been appointed Recorder of the borough of Poole, in Dorsetshire, in succession to the late Mr. Henry Bullar. Mr. Collier is a younger brother of Sir Robert P. Collier, the Attorney-General, being a son of the late John Collier, Esq., a merchant and shipowner, who was M.P. for Plymouth from 1832 to 1841, by Emma, fourth daughter of the late Robert Porrett, Esq., of North Hill House, near Plymouth. The new recorder was called to the bar at the Inner Temple in June, 1859, and practises at various sessions on the western circuit. Last year he acted as secretary to the Beverley Election Commissioners.

MESSRS. #### GENERAL CORRESPONDENCE.

* * A correspondent has a very strong impression that an author whose works we have twice reviewed during the last six years, is a person who has, as far as he could, lowered the status of the profession; and our correspondent cannot understand how it is that we notice the works of a person of such a class.

To which we reply:—We always have, and always shall, set our heel strongly upon improper conduct on the part of any member of the profession.

As regards reviews, it is our duty, for the information of our readers, to give reliable accounts of all works submitted to us, and our readers require for their information under this head, reviews, not of the authors, but of the books.

COUNTY COURT PROCEDURE.

Sir,—Passing over for the present the 5th and 6th questions of the Judicature Commissioners, we come to question 7, which relates to a matter of very considerable importance. The Commissioners ask:—"Does any, and what, inconvenience result from the county court judges having to administer justice upon three distinct systems? Could the proceedings be simplified by giving power to administer the several jurisdictions in one form of proceeding, irrespective of the question whether the suitor is entitled to his remedy under the equitable, the admiralty, or the common law jurisdiction; or should such power be subject to any and what special exceptions?"

I cannot myself imagine the possibility of this question being answered in any but one way. The more complex and various rules of practice are, the longer time it will take to master their details, and the fewer persons will be found to bestow the necessary trouble upon them. Whether regard be had to the judges who have to interpret, to the officials who have to apply, or to the counsel and attorneys who have to advise upon rules of procedure, nothing can be more important than that they should be framed in language the simplest, the shortest, the clearest, and the most uniform that can be adopted. Every hour that a busy lawyer is obliged to spend in "getting up" adjective orders and forms, is an hour withdrawn from the study or the application of the substantive principles of law; and certainly the wisest maxim on which the law reformer can act, at least in the present day, may be thus enunciated, "Take care to simplify the rules of procedure, and let the rules of law take care of themselves." Not only does the needless multiplication of forms cause a sheer waste of labour in the endeavour to read, mark, learn and inwardly digest them, but it becomes a fruitful source of error when even the most laborious practitioners are employed; and when experiments are tried to act without legal assistance, the hardy experimentalist almost inevitably "comes to grief."

If the above observations be considered applicable to the procedure of all courts of justice, they have a special bearing on the practice of the county courts. Those tribunals are peculiarly the courts of the poor suitor, who often cannot afford the luxury of a lawyer, or, at least, is obliged to rest satisfied with the doubtful aid of the less skilled labourers in the legal vineyard. To such persons a complicated system of practice is tantamount to a denial of justice, and the idea of their comprehending three different systems is simply ridiculous. Nothing, then, can justify the continuance of such a state of things short of clear proof that further simplification is impracticable; and the question whether such proof can be furnished will be the sooner solved if an attempt be made to contrast an action at law with a suit in equity, as each is commenced, continued, and ended in the county court. I will select for this purpose two cases which intrinsically have many points of resemblance—viz., an action by a tradesman against the executor of his late customer to recover the amount of his bill, and an administration suit, brought either by a creditor or a legatee, against an executor. In the first case the defendant is summoned as "C. D., the executor of M. N.," to attend a court on a certain day to answer the plaintiff as per particulars annexed. Then follows the bill in the ordinary form of a tradesman's account. No written defence to this plaint, except under very special circumstances, is either necessary or allowable; but on the day of trial the defendant is asked on oath whether he admits his representative character, whether he disputes the demand, and if so on what ground, and whether he alleges a total or a partial administration of assets. In three minutes the judge understands the precise point or points in issue, and is then able to apply his mind to the evidence which bears upon them. Generally speaking the whole matter is settled almost in as short a time as it has taken me to write this account; but occasionally, where the defence turns on the due administration of assets, the defendant will not be prepared with all his proofs. In that event the hearing will be adjourned to a future day, when the cause will be finally disposed of by the judge. I say emphatically "by the judge" because I wish it to be distinctly understood that no reference is made to the registrar to examine and report on the executorship accounts, nor does he in any way interfere, except by making an official record of the judgment of the court. The entire proceedings take place in open court, the evidence is all given videlicet, there is no needless delay, there is no needless expense, there is no shifting of responsibility: the judge alone hears and decides.

From this very simple and very satisfactory mode of procedure let us now turn to consider an administration suit, conducted in conformity with the "County Court Orders and Forms in Equity." The first step is to prepare a plaint, which is playfully called in the Order "a concise statement of the grounds upon which the plaintiff seeks to obtain relief," but which, in the form given, condescends to tolerably minute details. It is divided into numbered sections, and contains allegations to the following effect:—(1) that A. B., late of —, was, at the time of his death, and his estate still is, indebted to the plaintiff in the sum of (inserting nature of debt); (2) that A. B. duly made his will dated, &c., and appointed C. D. his executor; (3) that the will was duly proved, &c.; (4) that the defendant has possessed himself of the personal estate of the said A. B. and has not paid plaintiff, &c.; (5) that the said A. B. died on —, and had his last place of abode within the jurisdiction of the Court; (6) that the whole of the personal estate, &c., does not exceed in value £500. Then comes a prayer that an account may be taken of the estate, &c., and that the case may be duly administered, &c., and for further relief, &c. If the plaintiff be a legatee instead of a creditor, the testator's bequest is inserted in one paragraph and its non-payment is alleged in another. To this flux of words—which substantially means no more than the common law formula "A. B. v. C. D. executor of M. N.," but which nevertheless is, in practice, often settled, if not drawn, by a skilled equity draftsman—the defendant in turn may transmit to the registrar a counter-statement, signed by himself, admitting or denying the allegations in the plaint, or raising questions of law upon them, or alleging new facts, or referring to new documents. True, he is not bound to take this course, nor, indeed, is it of any use; but still, it is not unfrequently taken, possibly because it affords a good opportunity for manufacturing costs. At length the case comes on for trial, and then, after a few questions have been asked and answered, the recognised practice is to make "a decretal order," that is, to refer the whole matter to the registrar, directing him to take and make some twenty accounts and inquiries; as for example, an account of the debts, an account of the legacies, an account of the funeral and testamentary expenses, an account of the personal estate realised, an inquiry respecting the outstanding estate, and so on, through two or three pages of instructions. When the registrar's certificate of the result is ready, if it ever arrives at that stage, it must lie in his office for a full week to enable the parties to inspect it, after which it will be presented to the court in due form, and the case will be ripe for a final decree.

Now, I submit, with confidence, that all this cumbersome machinery is quite out of character with the class of cases which come before the county courts. The executor of a village tradesman refuses to pay a small legacy because the legatee is wrongly described, or the subject matter of the bequest is not clearly defined. To decide such a point—and in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred the question really at issue is not more complex—written pleadings, and references to the registrar, and sittings in chambers, and inspections of certificates, and advertisements, and attorneys and counsel, are not required, but simply a little common sense, a little law, and, above all, a little patience on the part of the judge.

The above remarks deserve additional attention when applied to other cases over which the county court now exercises equitable or admiralty jurisdiction. For instance, why should not a suit for specific performance be commenced, as at common law, by a summons directing the defendant to show cause why he should not perform his agreement to buy such a house, or to take on lease such a farm? Why should not a partner bring his co-partner into court, by a summons directing him to answer a demand for a dissolution of the partnership, and a settlement of the accounts? Why should not a suit for foreclosure or redemption be dealt with in the same simple manner? Above all, why should not all these cases, as at common law, be disposed of by the judge alone?

BARRISTERS AND ATTORNEYS.

Sir,—Your correspondent, "An Advocate," has ably urged the necessity of some relaxation of the rule which compels the employment of barristers, and he has urged it mainly from an economical point of view. I venture to submit that the ruinous expense consequent upon this rule is by no means the worst of the evil. It has often fallen to my lot to feel how grievously interests are sacrificed by the present system—how miserably an attorney's efforts to put forward the strong points of his case are frequently thrown away—how hours and days of careful preparation are utterly wasted,—because every word of explanation and argument to the Court must be uttered not by the person who most thoroughly understands the points of the case, and who has laboriously mastered the details, but by one who, however clever and quick-sighted, has the disadvantage of obtaining all his knowledge of the case second-hand, and often at the shortest notice. This is bad enough when the advocate is really "clever and quick-sighted," but how, when he is the reverse? What attorney has not sat by and gossamed to find, when it is too late, that his counsel has the haziest notions of the real features of the case; and which of us has not felt most bitterly the misery of being forbidden to utter the few simple words which would remove the cloud which threatens to enshroud judge, jury, and every one else?

Writing as an attorney, one naturally harps on the attorney's grievance; but if the attorney suffers in mind and reputation the public suffer in purse and pocket far more, and it is in their behalf, not merely as regards the question of fees, but as regards the interests of justice, that a remedy should be sought. This age has seen the removal of many old-fashioned prejudices, many time-honoured superstitions. The absurd notion that forensic wisdom can only be found in connection with a barrister's wig cannot long survive.

STAMPS ON BUILDING LEASES.

Sir,—It is impossible to draw (as the authorities seem to have done) a hard and fast line on the precise grammatical meaning of the words "valuable consideration" in the 17 & 18 Vict. c. 83, s. 16, for if so any valuable consideration ultra the rent would of course subject the lease to the additional thirty-five shilling stamp. Covenants to repair, to grant, to insure, &c., are all in a sense "valuable" considerations beyond the rent, and yet no human being has up to this time conceived that they subject instruments to further duties, either in leases, mortgages, or anything else. The true principle would seem to be that you must stamp the document with the duty applicable to its main purpose and object, and so long as its provisions are merely subsidiary thereto, and inserted only to secure the more perfect working out of the main object, to treat them as covered by the duty so impressed. The Government taxes that to the extent it thinks fit, and there should be an end; any other construction would lead to consequences the most absurd, and no instrument would be safe without the extra stamp. A covenant to produce, to preserve boundaries, to respect your neighbours' lights, and so on, would thus make a second duty necessary, because it is valuable; but it is useless to multiply instances.

I would, however, go further, and say that in the case of building leases there is no "valuable consideration" within the words of the Act; for the "value" there contemplated, i.e., the value moving the lessor to make the grant, is the rent merely; the covenants insuring the security of the rent (and none of the usual covenants do more than that in one form or another) do not increase the rent itself, or make it, granted the solvency of the lessee, one whit more "valuable." Suppose the rent were secured by, say, twenty guarantors, to put its payment beyond all possible question, would the instrument be liable to a higher duty? This argument strictly holds good in all cases of under-leases where there is only a nominal reversion in the lessor of no possible value. It has less application no doubt where the lessor is seized in fee and comes into a real reversion; but even here I conceive it should apply, for the value of the reversion on a ninety-nine years lease is, at the time of the grant, so infinitesimal as to be not worth consideration—i.e., it would not be valuable, except on the most minute investigations.

I, in common with the rest of the profession, should be glad to see some judicial decision on the subject, because if it confirmed the present views of the authorities there must be legislation to remedy the evils past and to come; and if it overruled them there would be an end to the doubt and confusion now engendered. If the law be now correctly laid down by Somerset House, it is one of great hardship to builders, and will greatly tend to put a stop to the present growing and most convenient custom of taking up a lease for each house erected.

A BUILDER'S SOLICITOR.

LIFE POLICY—THE "DAYS OF GRACE."

Sir,—My attention has lately been drawn to the question whether an action upon a policy can be maintained against a life insurance company, in a case where the person whose life was insured died during the days of grace allowed for payment of the premium, and before the premium had been actually paid. Unquestionably, the common belief is that payment of a premium during the days of grace will operate for all purposes as payment on the appointed day; and, indeed, unless this is so, the risk of taking advantage of the days of grace is too great to be encountered. In Selwyn's Nisi Prius (12th ed.) vol. ii. p. 1044, the following passage occurs; citing the case of Simpson v. The Accidental Death Insurance Company (5 W.R. 307, 26 L. J. C. P. 289):—

"Where a policy is to continue, provided the assured pay the premium within twenty-one days of its falling due, this does not give the executors the right to pay it after his death, even though tendered within the twenty-one days."

Unfortunately, I have not a report of the case referred to, so as to be able to ascertain upon what the decision turned. The question seems to have been considered in a recent case in the District Court of Philadelphia (reported in your last week's number), but there the action appears to have been for a return of premiums on the winding-up of the company's business, and not for the amount insured by the policy. Indeed there is one passage in the report which may be taken as implying that the policy would be rendered void by "death occurring in the interval of non-payment," notwithstanding that the days of grace had not then expired. No doubt the point has long ago been settled, but I shall be glad to be referred to an authority.

Jan. 5, 1870.

A COUNTRY SOLICITOR.

[The answer to the question—whether or no the representatives of the assured can claim to pay after his death during the days of grace—must depend in each case on the custom of or terms provided by the company. The subject is fully discussed at pages 65 and 66 of Mr. Bunyon's work on Life Assurance, from which it appears that whatever the conditions may be, they will be strictly enforced, at least at law. So in Acey v. Fernie, 7 M. & W. 151, the policy mentioned that the premiums were to be paid during "the life" of the assured, and he dying during the days of grace, it was held that his representatives could not pay the premium and take the sum assured. In Simpson v. Accidental Assurance Company, reported also 7 C. B. N. S. 297, the policy stipulated that default should not invalidate the policy, provided "he, the assured," paid the premium within twenty days. It was held that this did not give his executors the right to pay it after his death. And we imagine the rule to be that unless the conditions expressly sanction a payment by representatives after death occurring within the days of grace, the position of the assured is simply that during the days of grace he has the power of keeping up his policy by paying the premium, but that if he dies during the days of grace without having made such payment, the policy lapses.—Ed. S. J.]

STAMPS ON BUILDING LEASES, &c.

Sir,—Allow me to refer to my letter, and your comment on it, in your paper of the 11th ult. (pp. 108 and 116). I have now reason to hope that one of the law societies will promote an appeal against this new ruling at Somerset House, but at present no decision has been announced.

Many think that as this ruling concerns the profession generally (for all must have erred, more or less, if it be correct) the appeal should be promoted by one of its representative bodies, who—if unsuccessful there—would then go to Parliament for an Amending Act with greater prestige than after an appeal by an individual. If, however, the societies will not promote such an appeal I hope to be able to do so. I have had a lease, containing covenants to build, &c., adjudicated upon in readiness for entering an appeal, and several of your readers have offered to contribute towards the costs of it; but I shall be glad of further aid, so that if I have to appeal I may procure the best assistance I can at the bar without too great an outlay on my own part in a matter of such general interest to the profession at large.

I repeat, I will readily reply to any one who may desire further information, or it may be obtained on personal application to my agent, Mr. James Cowdy, 17, Serjeants'-inn, Fleet-street.

THE NEW PRACTICE AT WORSHIP STREET.

Sir,—In the Times of January 3rd appeared the following—[The paragraph quoted by "J. A. A." details the course recently adopted by the magistrates of the Worship-street Police Court, vide sup. 187].

By which it will be seen that the magistrates of the Worship-street Police Court have set an example which I submit ought to be followed by the magistrates of all other police courts.

It is a boon and protection to the public, and it is a right that solicitors, who pay £9 a year for their certificate entitling them to practice, have a right to demand.

Why magistrates who ought to be the first to uphold the law should day after day allow an Act of Parliament to be treated with contempt, I have always been at a loss to conceive. It is no uncommon occurrence to see reported in the daily newspapers that Mr. A. B. appeared for So-and-so and to find on referring to the Law List that no such name appears therein, and on further inquiry to find that A. B. is (or, which is much nearer the truth), says, he is clerk to C. D. an attorney, the said C. D. being frequently a person who allows various A. B.'s to practice in his name for a consideration.

Why the Law Institution, which is supposed to watch over the interests of the profession have never taken up this question, I fail to understand; but a step has now been taken in the right direction, and I hope you will use your powerful interests so far as you can in preventing illegitimate persons practising as solicitors or advocates.

So far back as the 1st of March, 1862, you (in Vol. vi, p. 313, S. J.) wrote as follows:—

"It is enacted, by the 6 & 7 Vict. c. 73, s. 2, 'That no person shall act as an attorney or solicitor in any cause, matter, or suit, civil or criminal, to be tried, heard or determined, before any justice or justices, unless such person shall have been admitted as an attorney.' It is further enacted by the 23 & 24 Vict. c. 127, s. 26, 'That every person who acts as an attorney or solicitor contrary to the 6 & 7 Vict. c. 73, s. 2, shall be deemed guilty of a contempt of the court in which the action, cause, suit, case, matter, or proceeding, in relation to which he so acts is brought, had, or taken, and may be punished accordingly; and that he shall, in addition, forfeit, for every such offence, £50, to be recovered with full costs of suit, by action brought in the name of the Incorporated Law Society.'" #### ASSIMILATION OF THE TWO BRANCHES OF THE PROFESSION.

Sir,—Your columns have for several weeks been, more or less, occupied by this subject, and I regret to see on the part of many of your correspondents and others a disposition to treat the question as one of rivalry between the two branches of the profession inter se, and not, as it really is, one of greater or less public advantage. The real question is—is it desirable, in the interest of the suitors, and without regard to its effect on the profession, in either branch, that the existing distinctions between the duties and privileges of the barrister and solicitor should be continued? I humbly conceive that it is; but I may be mistaken in this, and do not at present desire to discuss the point.

I do, however, wish to point out to those gentlemen who are now so loudly echoing Mr. Field's old outcry against "the autocracy of the bar," that the advantages of the existing system are by no means so one-sided as they seem to suppose. The first necessary result of the admission of solicitors as advocates would be, of course, to admit the bar to act as solicitors, and thus to sweep away at once two regulations, the combined effect of which has been to deprive the junior bar of many thousands of pounds; one, the rule of law which prevents a barrister from suing a defaulting client for his fees, and the other the etiquette of the profession which prevents him from dealing with the ultimate client direct.

Were I at liberty to refer to individual cases, I would point out within my own acquaintance gentlemen at the bar who would, at least, double their incomes at the expense of the other (I decline to enter into the puerile squabble respecting "higher" or "lower") branch of the profession, were these restrictions removed.

BARRISTERS AND ATTORNEYS.

Sir,—In my letter which appeared in your impression of the 8th inst. I hazarded the assertion in a parenthesis that barristers form the "lower" branch of the profession. At first sight it may seem audacious to say such a thing, but I ask Sir, as our's is a learned profession, of what does the measure of a man consist? Surely his learning. Position, promotion, power and patronage may possibly force a man into a higher sphere in society I grant; but if his ignorance go with him he will make up for it by a bold assumption of wisdom's ways, and by blaming everybody but himself who makes a mistake; and so far from congratulating him we are compelled to deplore the state of our laws which puts him at so much pains to conceal his want of erudition. Yet, such is the position of a gentleman who is called to the bar, and this want of thorough and comprehensive legal education characterises him until he is raised to the bench. The painful exhibitions we have now and then on the bench must demonstrate this to every one. The superiority of a solicitor to a barrister consists in his learning.

An editor of one of our leading newspapers who is a barrister, in the course of conversation with me upon this subject ridiculed the very idea of barristers being called "learned." "It is true," said he, "that the public suppose we read a great deal, but the difficulty I have is in finding a man who has read anything." I will not go so far as this myself, but I am certain that the reason solicitors have a greater hold on the public is because their knowledge of the law is more various and extended. He is able in one matter—a liquidation for example—to bring his knowledge of the practice of Common Law, Chancery, Probate, Admiralty, Bankruptcy, and other courts to bear upon the subject, whereas a barrister would only be able to advise as to the practice of one. The learning barristers do attain cannot be relied upon until they have been practising some three or four years, and then too betide the solicitor who first briefs them. His chances of success are as little as possible.

I have often canvassed the opinion of my professional brethren upon this subject, and in the end they generally agree with me, although at first they have a repugnance to any change. They very nearly always begin by saying that they find it a great advantage to be able to put the papers into another person's hands and to get his independent opinion.

True, but the answer is, "Could you not if you chose satisfy yourself by looking into the law of the case?" "Oh yes," he replies, "but still I could not go out of my office and lose the fees I make by my clients coming to consult me, &c., &c." "But you are now bound to attend court on the trial of your causes, and you might just as well do the work as do nothing." "Very true," is the reply. "I am, but then I might not succeed as I am not accustomed to advocacy; although I have no doubt I could do better than many counsel, and in fact, I am certain I should, for I have lost many causes through their sheer ignorance, pride and obstinacy . . . well, upon the whole, I think now it would be a good thing if we were allowed to plead in the superior courts." Such Sir is the vis inertia in our profession, that it is almost impossible to get any reform noticed; or perhaps I should say that the labour is so great in comparison with the returns that no time is left for the consideration of any scheme for the general good. But I think it is clear that it is the duty of the Incorporated Law Society to take up the subject for us. They are, in a measure, responsible for our learning, and they ought to see that it has its due reward.

A SOLICITOR.

RETAINER TO COUNSEL.

Sir,—Perhaps you or some of your readers can assist us, as old subscribers, with a little information on the following point:—

A., the plaintiff in equity, gave a general retainer to a common law barrister; B., the defendant in equity, some time afterwards gave a special retainer in the suit to the same common law barrister. A. assigned a certain interest in the subject matter of the suit to C. and D., who filed a bill to obtain benefit of A.'s suit, and on the same day that the last-named special retainer was given, but within an hour or so afterwards, C. and D. gave a general retainer to the same common law barrister. Both suits were heard together, and one decree, directing certain inquiries, was made in them. On that hearing, nominal briefs only were given to the common law barrister. Both suits are now again coming on to be heard, and both parties desire to brief the common law barrister. Who is entitled to his services?

Yours, &c.,

ENQUIRER.

City, Jan. 12.

[Of course C. and D. can get no benefit from A.'s retainer.

As to their rights under their own retainer given an hour or so after B. had given his, it appears to us that by giving "nominal briefs" only to the barrister, each side dropped their retainer, and that in consequence the party first giving a special retainer after that event, is entitled to the barrister's services. For another case, see 12 S. J. 109.—Ed. S. J.]

MR. A. E. WATTS.

Mr. Alfred Eugene Watts, solicitor, formerly of Park-house, Sydenham, died at Penge, Surrey, on the 1st of January, after a brief illness, of disease of the heart. Mr. Eugene Watts was certificated as a solicitor in Michaelmas Term, 1863, and carried on business both in London and at Romford.

MR. J. TIDD PRATT.

We have to announce the death of Mr. John Tidd Pratt, barrister-at-law and registrar of friendly societies in England and Wales, who expired on the 9th of January at his residence in Abingdon-street, Westminster. Mr. Tidd Pratt was born on the 13th December, 1797, and had, therefore, completed his 72nd year. He was called to the bar at the Inner Temple in Michaelmas Term, 1824, and since 1828 had held the office of consulting barrister to the Commissioners for the Reduction of the National Debt. Besides being registrar of friendly societies, he was the barrister appointed by Government to certify the rules of savings-banks, &c. Mr. Pratt wrote and published, in 1837, a treatise on the "General Turnpike-road Acts, with Notes," and in 1846 he issued a "Summary of the History of Savings-banks." He also wrote "The Law relating to Friendly Societies," which appeared in 1855; besides "The Laws of Highways," "An Analysis of the Property Tax Act," "Suggestions for the Establishment of Friendly Societies," &c. He was included in the commission of the peace for Middlesex, Westminster, Kent, Surrey, Sussex, and the Cinque Ports, and was a Deputy Lieutenant for the county of Middlesex. Of late years Mr. Pratt was frequently consulted in his official capacity as to the soundness or otherwise of the various friendly societies in the kingdom, in which matter he became a general referee.

MR. J. B. GRINDON.

We have to record the death of Mr. Joseph Baker Grindon, solicitor, of Bristol, who expired on the 2nd of January, at the ripe age of eighty years. The late Mr. Grindon had been for nearly half a century one of her Majesty's coroners for the city of Bristol, having been formerly associated in that office with a gentleman named Langley, but for more than thirty years past he had acted alone. The deceased gentleman was the author of a work on the Coroner's Office, which has been quoted by judges of the superior courts, and he was regarded as an authority on all points relating to "crown's quest law." Mr. Grindon had acquired a large amount of medical, surgical, and scientific knowledge, and often astonished skilled witnesses by the pertinence of his inquiries and the shrewdness of his remarks. Some years ago, failing sight compelled him to abandon the active duties of his office, which were for a time conducted as his deputy, by Mr. H. S. Wasbrough, the present coroner. Finding no hope of renovated health, however, Mr. Grindon resigned the coronership about two years ago, when Mr. Wasbrough was elected to succeed him. Mr. Grindon's remains were interred on the 6th of January, in the burying-ground adjoining Bristol Cathedral.

MR. H. M. GRIFFITHS.

The death of Mr. Henry Moore Griffiths, solicitor, of Birmingham, took place at Solihull, Warwickshire, on the 11th of January. Mr. Griffiths was the senior partner in the firm of Griffiths and Bloxham, of Birmingham, and was certificated as a solicitor in Michaelmas Term, 1829.

SOCIETIES AND INSTITUTIONS.

LAW STUDENTS' DEBATING SOCIETY.

At a meeting of this society held on Tuesday, the 11th inst., Mr. W. H. Herbert in the chair, a variety of business matters were disposed of; and, this being a quarterly meeting, the secretary made a statement showing the proceedings of the society during the past quarter. It was announced that 173 members were then on the roll, of whom 50 were members of the Incorporated Law Society, and 46 had passed their examinations with honour; also that 21 gentlemen had been elected as members during the past quarter; and that 7 had resigned. It also appeared that the attendance of members at the debates during the past quarter had been unusually good. Three motions relating to various matters were brought forward and negatived. The number of members present was 35.

RULES AND FORMS FOR REGULATING THE PROCEEDINGS IN THE COUNTY COURTS UNDER THE DEBTORS ACT, 1869, AND THE FEES TO BE TAKEN THEREON.

We, George Lake Russell, John Bury Dasent, John Worledge, Rupert Alfred Kettle, and William Furner, being Judges of County Courts appointed to frame Rules and Orders for regulating the Practice of the Courts, and Forms of Proceedings therein, under the 32nd section of "The County Courts Act, 1856," have, under the powers vested in us by the said Act and by "The Debtors Act, 1869," framed the following Rules and Forms, and we do hereby certify the same to the Lord Chancellor accordingly.

The Rules, Orders, and Forms now in use in the county courts, numbered respectively 135, 136, 137, 155, 156, 157, 158, 159, 160, 161, 162, 163, 164, 165, 166, 167, and 168, shall, on and from the 1st of January, 1870, cease to be used, and in lieu thereof the following shall, on and from such day, be the rules and forms in force and used in the said courts under the Debtors Act, 1869.

Interpretation.

In the following rules the word Act shall mean the Debtors Act, 1869; and the words "clear days" shall mean that in all cases in which any particular number of days is prescribed for the doing any act or for any other purpose, the same shall be reckoned exclusive both of the first and of the last day; and unless there be something in the context inconsistent therewith, the provisions of section 142 of the County Courts Act, 1846, shall apply to the interpretation of these rules.

Judgment summons.

1. No order of commitment under the Act shall be made unless a summons to appear and be examined on oath, hereinafter called a judgment summons, shall have been personally served upon the judgment debtor.

2. A judgment summons shall not be issued by a court unless the debtor resides or carries on business within its district, or unless leave of the court under section 48 of the County Courts Act, 1856, has been obtained.

3. An application by a judgment creditor for the issue of a judgment summons under the Act shall be in writing, signed by the applicant or his agent according to the form in the schedule.

4. Where a judgment creditor desires to apply for a judgment summons to a county court other than the county court in which the order or judgment was obtained, he shall obtain from the registrar of the county court in which the order or judgment was obtained, a certified copy of the order or judgment in the cause, according to the form in the schedule, and file the same with his application.

5. Where a party desires to enforce by commitment in any county court a judgment, decree, or order of a superior court of law or equity, or of any other competent court, he shall obtain from such court an office copy of the judgment, decree, or order he desires so to enforce, and shall file such office copy, together with an affidavit of the sum then due thereon, with the registrar of the court of the district in which the party, against whom the same is to be enforced, resides or carries on business.

6. The registrar of the court to which the application for a judgment summons is made shall, upon delivery to him of the certificate of the county court, or office copy of the judgment, decree, or order of any other court, file the same and issue thereon a judgment summons.

7. Every judgment summons shall be according to the form in the schedule, and be issued not less than ten clear days, and be served not less than five clear days, before the day on which the judgment debtor is required to appear, except in the case provided for by the next following rule.

8. Where the person applying for the judgment summons shall state to the registrar that the judgment debtor is about to remove from his dwelling or place of business, or is keeping out of the way to avoid service, then the judgment summons may be issued and served at any time before the hearing: Provided that the court shall not act upon a summons issued under this rule, unless at the hearing the judge is satisfied, by evidence on oath, that at the time of the application for the judgment summons such party was about to remove from his dwelling or place of business, or was keeping out of the way to avoid service, in either of which cases service upon the party at any time before the time appointed for the appearance of such party shall be sufficient.

9. A judgment summons may issue without leave of the court, except in cases provided for either by section 48 of the County Courts Act, 1856, or by the last rule.

10. No successive judgment summonses shall be issued.

11. The hearing of a judgment summons may be adjourned from time to time.

12. Any witness may be summoned to prove the means of the judgment debtor, in the same manner as witnesses are summoned to give evidence upon the hearing of a plaint.

13. Upon the issue of a judgment summons against a party upon an order or judgment of the court issuing the judgment summons the bailiff of such court shall return into court any warrant of execution against the goods of such party which may have been issued in the cause.

14. Where a judgment summons is heard in a court other than the court in which the order or judgment was obtained, and an order is made by the judge of the court in which the judgment summons is heard altering the terms of the order or judgment, all payments under the new order shall be made into, and execution thereupon against the goods shall be issued by, the court which has so altered the order.

15. Where a certified copy of a judgment is obtained from the registrar of a county court, he shall make on the minute of the judgment a memorandum of having given such certificate, and no warrant of execution against the goods or judgment summons upon such judgment shall issue from such court, unless it be shown to the satisfaction of the court or registrar that no order has been made against the execution debtor in any other court.

Order of commitment.

16. An order of commitment made under the Act shall be according to the form in the schedule, and shall, on whatever day it may be issued from the registrar's office, bear date on the day on which the order for commitment was made, and shall continue in force for one year from such date and no longer.

17. When an order of commitment for non-payment of money is issued the defendant may, at any time before his body is delivered into the custody of the gaoler, pay to the bailiff the amount indorsed on the order as that, on the payment of which he may be discharged; and on receiving such amount the bailiff shall discharge the defendant, and shall within twenty-four hours after receiving such amount pay over the same to the registrar of the county court of which he is an officer.

18. The sum indorsed on the order of commitment, as that upon payment of which the prisoner may be discharged, may be paid to the registrar of the court from which the commitment order was issued, or to the gaoler in whose custody the prisoner is. Where it is paid to the registrar he shall sign and seal a certificate of such payment, and upon receiving such certificate by post or otherwise, the gaoler, in whose custody the prisoner shall then be, shall forthwith discharge such prisoner. And where it is paid to the gaoler, he shall, upon payment to him of such amount, together with costs sufficient to pay for transmitting such amount to the court under the order of which the prisoner was committed, by Post Office order, sign a certificate of such payment and discharge the prisoner, and such costs of transmission shall be part of the prescribed costs.

19. A certificate of payment by a prisoner shall be according to the form in the schedule.

20. Orders of commitment against the same party may be issued concurrently into more than one district; provided that the cost of one order only shall be allowed unless the judge shall otherwise direct.

21. On the hearing of a judgment summons, where a warrant against the goods has been issued, the costs of such warrant shall not be allowed as against the judgment debtor, unless the judge be satisfied that there was reasonable cause for issuing the warrant.

22. The costs of a judgment summons shall not be allowed against the judgment debtor, unless some order shall be made thereon; but where an order is made on a judgment summons the judge may, in his discretion, allow the

24. An order of commitment under the Act shall not be available against a bankrupt in respect of any debt incurred previous to his order of adjudication, or against any debtor whose debts have been liquidated under section 125 of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, in respect of any debt incurred previous to the liquidation, or against any debtor from whom a composition has been accepted under section 126 of

Costs.

25. The costs which shall be payable by a person imprisoned under the Act shall be the fees directed to be taken in proceedings under the Act by any order of the Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury under the powers vested in them by the County Courts Act, 1856, and such fees shall be deemed to be and shall be the prescribed costs referred to in section 5 of the Act.

The Right Rev. Harvey Goodwin, of Caius College, Cambridge, the new Bishop of Carlisle, and known to mathematical students as the author of "Goodwin's Course," is the son of the late Charles Goodwin, Esq., an eminent solicitor, of King's Lynn, Norfolk.

The Oxford Board of Guardians have fixed the salary of their clerk at £100 a-year, and have decided that he should be a solicitor or attorney. The election of a new clerk, in succession to the late Mr. H. Jacob, is to take place on the 20th of February next.

Mr. William Weedon, solicitor, of Reading, has issued an address to the freeholders of the county, asking their votes in order to secure the coronership of East Berkshire, rendered vacant by the death of Mr. Rupert Clarke. Mr. Weedon has for some years filled the office of deputy coroner. Mr. James William Smith, solicitor, of Maidenhead, is also a candidate for the office.

FEES OF MAGISTRATES' CLERKS.—At the Stafford Petty Sessions, on January 3, an important discussion followed the presentation of the report upon the question of paying clerks of petty sessions by salary instead of by fees. The Committee reported that if the Act empowering this were adopted, £6,424 would be claimed by justices' clerks as compensation, two-thirds of which would go to the Wolverhampton stipendiary district. As a royal commission with large powers had been appointed to report upon the whole civil and criminal law of the country, and as they would most likely take cognizance of this question, the Committee recommended that no action be taken at present. Mr. Spooner, stipendiary magistrate of South Staffordshire, gave some startling facts. He said that one clerk, in his own district, for sitting on the Saturday of each week, received an average income of £700 a-year. The chief clerks of the London magistrates, for attendance every day in the week, received £500 a-year, and the salary of the speaker's (Mr. Spooner's) clerk was £400. Now, he would give a few instances of the remuneration received by magistrates' clerks in the shape of fees in their own county. One gentleman, who sat three days a fortnight, got an average of £675; another, who sat one day a fortnight, received £425; a third, for one day's work a week, £470; and a fourth, £435.

MONEY MARKET AND CITY INTELLIGENCE.

The markets generally are lower than they had been expected to be, considering the amount of money shortly about to be dispersed among the public in settlement of the Government telegraph purchase. The funds and foreign securities commenced the week with some strength, but did not maintain it. The railway market has been low, and subject to small fluctuations. Considerable transactions are going on in telegraph shares, very high prices being obtained in some instances.
